

Essay Example:

Apples and Oranges

Apples and oranges are both popular fruits that many people enjoy, but they are also very different. They both grow on trees and are good for your health. If you look more closely, you'll see they taste, look, and feel very different.

First, apples and oranges have different tastes. Apples are usually sweet or a little sour, depending on the kind. Oranges are sweet too, but they also have a strong, juicy citrus flavor. While both are tasty, the flavor of an orange is brighter, and apples are more crisp.

Next, apples and oranges do not look the same. Apples can be red, green, or yellow and have smooth skin. Oranges are always orange and have bumpy skin. Apples are round, and oranges are round too, but oranges are usually a little bigger and heavier.

Finally, apples and oranges feel different when you eat them. Apples are crunchy and don't drip juice. You can bite right into them. Oranges are soft and juicy. You have to peel them first, and they often drip juice when you eat them.

Even though apples and oranges are both fruits and good for you, they are different in taste, look, and feel. Some people like apples better, and others like oranges, but both are delicious in their own way.

Outline Example:

Point-by-Point Outline: Apples vs. Oranges

I. Introduction

- A. Apples and oranges are both fruits
- B. They are healthy and grow on trees
- C. This essay will compare their taste, look, and feel

II. Taste

- A. Apples are sweet or sour, depending on the type
- B. Oranges are sweet and juicy with a citrus flavor
- C. Apples are crisp; oranges are more juicy

III. Look

- A. Apples are red, green, or yellow with smooth skin
- B. Oranges are always orange with bumpy skin
- C. Both are round, but oranges are usually heavier

IV. Feel When Eating

- A. Apples are crunchy and not messy
- B. Oranges are soft, juicy, and need to be peeled
- C. Oranges drip juice; apples are neater to eat

V. Conclusion

- A. Apples and oranges are both good for you
- B. They are different in taste, look, and feel
- C. Both make great snacks